Communicating with Teachers

It is important to have open lines of communication with your child's teacher throughout the school year. You know your child better than anyone else and your child's teacher(s) want to hear from you.

A few tips for success:

1. Ensure that your child's teacher(s) have your up-to-date contact information.
2. Introduce yourself at the beginning of the year and share any information with the school that may be useful for them to know as they work with your child.
3. Take advantage of Open House and parent-teacher conferences.
